Hazard Summary

Alert: A wildfire in central Spain has burned over 500 hectares of forest and scrubland near Mombeltrán, west of Madrid. Firefighters are battling strong flames fueled by dry vegetation and wind, using aircraft and ground crews to contain the fire. Tragically, a firefighter died en route to the scene after a car accident. Experts warn that Spain's forests, which have grown due to abandoned farmland, are increasingly vulnerable due to poor maintenance and accumulated dry vegetation. Authorities continue efforts to control the blaze amid challenging conditions.
